

Definition of the communication protocol between the server and the client

The chatprogram communicates via remote process using an IP address and port number, to exchange data, also known as sockets. A server socket waits for the client to request an operation.